The Republican party, true to its instincts, has placed in nomination a list of candidates in this country who are above reproach.—Tribune.

Does the Tribune mean to say that a man who is "greased" by contractors and a man who takes his neighbors chickens with corn baited fish-hooks is above reproach?

People are continually calling at the APPEAL office to ascertain why their names are not printed correctly on the List of registered voters. These people are respectfully referred to the office of the Tribune in the Old Fellows building, the paper which misprinted the official register.

MR. TORREYSON'S LETTER.

The Virginia Chronicle Dissects It in Plain Language.

The following from the Virginia Chronicle should be read by every voter who believes in fair play in election contests. It says:

Mr. Torreyson's ignorance of the law, or his partisan bias, has induced him to address a letter to Mr. Wildes which, if taken as a guide, is liable to make Mr. Wildes commit a felony. It is a serious matter to deprive citizens of the United States of the right of suffrage. But Mr. Torreyson advised the Clerk of this county so to print the sample ballots as to render them worthless as samples and confuse voters for partisan ends, without regard to the Constitution of this State.

The Constitution provides that every male citizen of the United States not laboring under the disabilities named in the Constitution, of the age of 21 years and upwards, who shall have acted and not constructively resided in the State six months and in the district or county thirty days next preceding the election, shall be entitled to vote for all offices that now or are hereafter to be elected by the people and upon all questions submitted to the electors at such election.

No citizen of Nevada who possesses the qualifications described in the foregoing provisions can be deprived of the right to vote by the Legislature. Any law which would have that effect is unconstitutional.

The Australian Ballot law, intended to secure the secrecy of the ballot, was not intended to deprive any voter however illiterate, of his constitutional rights; otherwise the Australian Ballot law itself would be void, as it is intended to be a guide to the voter.

The contrary of the Twenty-fifth Section of the Act declares that "the County Clerk shall cause to be printed on a white paper, without water marks, or other decorations except the words 'sample ballot,' at least three times as many copies of the form of ballot provided for use in each precinct as there shall be a registered voters in such precinct." And the law requires that two of these sample ballots shall be furnished to each voter five days previous to the election. This provision is intended to educate the voter who cannot read or write and enable him to mark his ballot and vote intelligently. To enable him to do so the sample ballot must be the same as the original. Mark the language; it must be a sample ballot and a copy of the form of the ballot provided for use. Any variation from this is a violation of the statute.

The definition given in the Century Dictionary, the standard authority of the English language, of the word sample, is: "Anything selected as a model, as the imitation, a pattern; an instance."

The words "sample ballot" would be a sufficient description to require the sample ballot furnished the voter to be in the exact size and form, and in every respect a model of the original ballot; but the statute does not stop there. It requires copies of the sample ballots of the form of the ballot provided for use.

The same authority defines a "copy" to be a duplication; transcription, imitation or reproduction of something of that which is not original.

A sample ballot which varies in any respect from the original cannot be a duplication, imitation or reproduction of the original. This is not all, but the statute requires that the sample ballot shall be a copy of the form of the ballot provided for use.

"Form is defined by the same authority as 'the external shape or configuration of a body, the figure, as defined by lines and surfaces; external appearance independently of color or material, a mould, pattern or model; something to give shape; a form on or after which things are fashioned, as a hatter's or milliner's form.'"

It does not require a lawyer to interpret this language, which is so plain in its meaning. Every mechanic knows when he is employed to make a copy of the form of any article he must make an exact copy of the model furnished him.

Notwithstanding these plain provisions of the statute, intended to enable every qualified elector to vote and secure him the right to exercise the franchise, the Attorney General has advised the Clerk of Storey county that if the names of the candidates in alphabetical order are printed on white paper without regard to the shape and form of the original ballot, that such a printed paper is a sample ballot within the meaning of the statute.

After having occupied considerable space, with direction and advice to the clerk to furnish the voter with fraudulent papers which are not samples of the original ballot, he says: "To be more specific, it is not essential to a compliance with the statute that the printed matter contained upon the sample ballot should occupy precisely the same place upon the paper as the identical matter in the original ballot."

The Attorney General gives as reasons for his legal opinion vague rumors as to how these sample ballots are to be used, as if it was not the purpose of the Act that they should be used to instruct the voter, and enable him to cast his ballot intelligently. Every qualified voter has a legal right to a sample ballot, and the Attorney General, in attempting to deprive him of that right, in advising the Clerk to commit a felony. The 29th section of the Australian ballot provides, that "any public officer upon whom any duty is imposed by this Act, who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to perform such duty, shall be deemed to be guilty of felony and upon conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the State Prison for a term not less than one year and not exceeding five years."

If Mr. Wildes takes the advice of the Attorney General and issues a sample ballot which is not in every respect a perfect sample and a true copy of the form of the original ballot he will wilfully neglect and refuse to perform a plain duty devolved upon him by law and will be guilty of a felony.

The Attorney General, in giving this advice, has committed a great wrong and probably subjected himself to trial and imprisonment by the Legislature. But Mr. Wildes has a duty to perform. There is no question but a plain for sample, except the color of the paper, and the words "sample ballot" printed thereon, would be a perfect sample ballot, and would be a compliance with the law, and not subject to criticism by anyone. It is equally true that every variation in the sample from the original would be a violation of law, and, if wilfully done, would be a felony under the statute.

It is worthy of remark that there has been no suggestion of fraudulent ballots except in two counties in this State, Storey and Ormsby. In Storey county Mr. Wildes' deputy Mr. Tully, is a candidate for the office of County Clerk and ex-officio Treasurer—the most important office in the county.

Any violation of the law on the part of Mr. Wildes will be construed to be in the interest of the election of Mr. Tully.

Such a motive in connection with a criminal act will be strong evidence against him on the trial for his crime.

The motive in the case of Wm. Hy Doane, the County Clerk of Ormsby County is still more apparent; he is a candidate for re-election, and he is also the Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee.

Mr. Wildes has heretofore borne a good character. The character of Mr. Doane is best known to the citizens of Ormsby. If voters are disfranchised by his criminal acts they will undoubtedly see that the law is vindicated by a prompt and efficient prosecution. We hope both of these gentlemen will refrain from carrying out the advice of the Attorney General to commit a crime.

It is no excuse for Mr. Wildes to violate the law because persons have importuned him to comply with its provisions and furnish true sample ballots, thereby giving fair play to all.

It is the very object of the law to allow the voter to punch mark or use his sample ballot in such manner as will best enable him to vote intelligently. The allegations that persons have stated to Mr. Wildes that they intended to mark their sample ballots for the education of the people who cannot read or write was a suggestion of intention to use such ballots to carry out the purposes of the law in accordance with the Constitution. Such use of the sample ballots, which is necessary and proper, is no excuse for committing a crime.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen—From the Holstein ranch, a sorrel mare four years old, with white strip on face running off to left side. She has no brand, but the right fore knee is rather large. The finder, or anyone giving information leading to her recovery, will be liberally rewarded by addressing Mrs. S. E. Roberts, care of this office. 63

LAST NIGHT'S MEETING.

Hon. C. C. Powning Makes an Eloquent Speech.

Last evening C. C. Powning made one of the best campaign speeches he ever delivered. He was listened to with applause and attention from a packed audience.

Miss Pearl Noble played several cornet solos which were received with applause, and at the close the lady was called out three times.

There were new topical songs by the Reno Glee Club and the meeting proved to be one of the best of the campaign.

Want of space prevents a reproduction of Mr. Powning's speech, which was one of the most logical and convincing ever made in this city.

The Great "Unmasking."

The Tribune of last evening contains a lengthy affidavit regarding the editor of the APPEAL.

The only trouble about the affidavit is that the statements made in it do not bear out the poster head lines displayed.

A paragraph in the affidavit which knocks one statement in it rather cold.

The man whom the lady before was the editor of the APPEAL is described as having "a peculiar mark on the upper lip in the right hand corner of his mouth."

The APPEAL editors lip has been carefully examined by a number of responsible people since the affidavit appeared, and no such mark can be found there.

The lady, in making the affidavit, seems to have mixed the APPEAL editor, the tall man with glasses, the man with the peculiar mark on the right hand corner of his lip and the second stranger up together.

Any statement that the APPEAL editor attempted to take a ballot from the office of Gamble & Co., for example, in any other way, is absolutely false.

Wouldn't Compare the Tickets.

Yesterday a delegation from the Executive Committee of the Silver party of Ormsby made a formal demand on County Clerk Doane to be allowed to compare the sample ballots with the voting ballots, to ascertain if the law had been complied with. He refused to allow the comparison to be made.

When asked if he would be kind enough to state under what section of the law he persisted in his obstinate refusal, he was unable to quote it, and finally added: "I will study it up."

He will probably begin studying the law after election, for he certainly will have ample time.

His refusal was the subject of much comment on the street. It is regarded as a high handed outrage by voters, and the impression that the Republicans of this county will sort to very desperate means to carry their ends at the polls, grows stronger in this community daily.

Jones for Weaver.

On Oct. 31st, Senator John P. Jones was interviewed at length by a New York press reporter and he came out squarely for Weaver and silver. He said the West could obtain recognition in no other way and that Weaver would carry Nevada, Colorado, Washington, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, North Carolina and perhaps Alabama and South Carolina.

The Mint men who have been quoting Jones as against Weaver, have very little to say. The APPEAL will publish the entire interview tomorrow.

In Harrison's State.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 3 Governor Campbell said tonight that Cleveland will carry Indiana by the largest majority known in years.

ALL SORTS.

Percy King denies that he wants the Postmastership.

See the realistic track laying scene in The Millionaire tonight.

Copies of Peter Gordon's great Empire speech will be circulated by the Republican party of this county as a campaign document.
